Christmas poem to my Wife

By : attanasio

This is a personal poem but two relatives wanted to see it after my wife mentioned it to them, so I am posting it here.

Published on Booksie

booksie.com/attanasio

Copyright © attanasio, 2014
Publish your writing on Booksie.com.

Christmas poem to my Wife

Â

Â

Â

Â

2011 and Christmas is the time of year

We are together and this brings me cheer

Our time together has been most of my life

I have been blessed to have you for a wife

Â .

Â .

I know you would say who, what, me, why

You can not grasp why I am a lucky guy

You feel like a burden, but your not

Youâ re my special person, I love you a lot

Â .

Â .

Youâ re not just the â woman behind the manâ

Together we have made me, who I am

Whenever I need you, you will be there

You are the answer to my prayer

Â .

Â .

We are quite a comfort to each other

Our love a compliment, not a smother

Christmas poem to my Wife

You and I make quite a team

As we work and play and dream

Â .

Â .

Together, into theÂ Â future we stroll

Sharing our hearts and our soul

You who I want to always be with

For your love is a most precious gift

Â

Â

Â

Created from Booksie.com

Generated: 2014-09-18 08:47:02