Happy Cake Day

By : Juggernaut

Happy Cake Day is celebrated on December 25th with no connection to Christmas celebrations; is it not icing on the cake.

Published on Booksie

booksie.com/Juggernaut

Copyright © Juggernaut, 2014
Publish your writing on Booksie.com.

Happy Cake Day

Happy Cake Day

Subba Rao

â Happy cake day,â said the girl operating the elevator at the newly opened mall in town.

â Happy cake day?â Juggernaut was perplexed since he never heard that greeting before.

â Yes sir; today is happy cake day.â

â OK, happy cake day to you.â

â Thank you.â

â How you celebrate happy cake day?â

â Well, we share sweet cakes with friends, relatives and fellow-workers today.â

â Today is December 25th.â

â Yes, on every December 25th, we celebrate happy cake day.â

â Today is also Christmas day,â â Umm, yes, yes; today is Christmas day,â the girl behaved as if she just remembered the significance of December 25th besides happy cake day.

â Do you celebrate Christmas?â Juggernaut was curious.

â Not really, we Hindus do not celebrate Christmas but we share cakes on December 25th.â

â OK, what kind of cake you like?â

â I like sweet dark plum cake, but I eat any kind of cake particularly the icing on the cake,â the girl was really into cakes.

â Well, have a nice happy cake day,â juggernaut was about to leave the elevator having reached the 4th floor to the food-court.

â Sir, you didnâ t tell me what kind of cake you like?â insisted the girl.

â Umm, I like chocolate cake but without icing.â

â Without icing? thatâ s the best part, any way try HMS bakery in the food court, it is the best place for cakes you know,â the girl was friendly.

â OK, have a happy cake day,â Juggernaut moved out of the elevator looking for HMS bakery to buy a large slice of chocolate cake to celebrate Happy Cake Day for the very first time in his home town in India.

Happy Cake Day

Created from Booksie.com

Generated: 2014-09-16 19:46:56