Yesterday, today and tomorrow (lost love)

By : ecodio

Lost love, the hardest time of my life.

Published on Booksie

booksie.com/ecodio

Copyright © ecodio, 2013
Publish your writing on Booksie.com.

Yesterday, today and tomorrow (lost love)

Yesterday, today and tomorrow

As poestic sentiment doesn't flash upon my heart

I doodle on a vacant notebook

Suddenly,

A familar face appears above the letters

The caged memories spread the wings

Soar to the presnt,

Peeping my yesterday, today and tomorrow

A silhouette in black-and -white gets dressed in techinicolor in the air

My cherished past cooped in a tomb,

Now wakes up,

Hears the whisper of a serene stream

Roling down on my cheek

Great longing for being together

Break the spell,

Makes a rush to my place

Yesterday, today and tomorrow (lost love)

A vanished sweet voice,

Searches for the stolen song

I stuttered when I should've spoken up!

I didn't sing a serenade when I had someone!

Dreamy eyes have watched each season's good-bye ceremony

Close-mouthed time has stupefied my unstoppable love

After unkind winter rain stops

Spring comes with a coy smile

The skies are blue and clear

Warm breeze touches my long hair

After all,

A blunt shadow inside me

Flies across my yesterday, today and tomorrow

Created from Booksie.com

Generated: 2013-05-24 16:07:51