

100 ways to motivate yourself * ch-1

By : meenakshi sharma

that's the 1st chapter of my this book .. please read and leave your opinions .. i just never know what to write in the summary .so please excuse me for my mistakes.. :) and the thing is a lot of indian and foreign writers had wrote their own views life to motivate it.. after inspiration i thought that i should also have to write my own views to life that how can we motivate ourself .. i'm not damn sure that i'm able to write 100 chapter or not but i'll surely write it till the end of my thoughts i mean not that . that i'll write to my life but i'll stop thinking about this book till i'll not completed its 100 chapter and if i'm unable at any point to not to write more to get 100 then i'll make the end of the book.. kindly help reading and commenting on it .. :) i'll be glad to be that ...

Published on Booksie

booksie.com/meenakshi sharma

Copyright © meenakshi sharma, 2015
Publish your writing on Booksie.com.

advertising yourself

^

1. ^ ^ ^ ^ the way you dress and the way you speak are accurate representation of how you view yourself. when you dress in jeans all the time, to me, that represents that you're down to earth. if you dress up even when you're not at work, that represents that you feel important and you've a statement to make. dressing down in sweat pants and tee shirts represents comfort in any given situations. all these scenarios are indicative of attire while you are not at work. business attire is quite different than the home apparel.

^

2. ^ ^ ^ ^ lounging around the home is the best time to see how you advertise yourself. the choice of clothing can accommodate your mood at that particular time. if you have to go to store do you keep what are wearing on, or are you the type of person that changes no matter what?

^

3. ^ ^ ^ ^ the way you speak is a good indication of how you advertise yourself. that could include the work and non work arenas. if you're with your friends and some of them are curse, and that is the norm, then the colorful metaphors espoused are indications. that comfort is the standard. if you're offended by cursing and people do it around you anyway, perhaps you need to find wither new friends or change your attitude and accept the fact that people are going to curse despite how you feel about it.

4. ^ ^ ^ ^ speaking to people can make them learn a great deal about you. what type of person are you? such as being open minded, close minded, inelligent, ignorant and a host of other attributes. if you tend to use BIG words, then the assumption is that you are smart. however, you need to make sure that the choice of words corresponds to what you are trying to say. the right words can give the appearance or illusion that you're smarter than you really are.

^

5. ^ ^ ^ ^ the words you use to advertise your education level. that does include self-taught too.

^

6. ^ ^ ^ ^ everyone can learn something from each other no matter how much or how little education you had received. the art of advertising yourself is dependent upon your attire and the way you speak. it might not be accurate, but perception makes reality. the choice of clothing reflects your mood and or how you feel about yourself. the choice of words can be construed germane to your educational level. however, everything is made in stone. there will be exceptions to the rule. being prudent helps in any given situation.

^

Created from Booksie.com

Generated: 2015-12-01 13:32:02