Chapter One: Adventuring with Fionna and Marshall Lee

Fionna paced back and forth. Why hasn't he talked to me yet? She thought. Marshall Lee was her Vampire bro, shouldn't he have talked to her at least once in the past THREE days? She flung herself on the bed. She sighed. Fionna hated drama. Cake sat next to her on the bed.

"You ok, Sugar?" Being Fionna's sister like cat, it was her job to know what was going on in Fionna's life. Fionna sat up. She scratched her head.

"It's just that..." Fionna felt the worried eyes of Cake set on her. Her paws set on her hand patting it. She shook her head and continued. "It's just that Marshall Lee hasn't talked to me and i'm worried." Cake growled.

"DO I HAVE TO HAVE A LITTLE CAT TALK WITH HIM!?" Cake's claws grew out. Fionna picked her up, put her on her lap, and stroked Cake's ear. She heard a purr coming from the cat.

"No, no, Cake. I was gonna go talk with him right now." Fionna grabbed her backpack. Cake followed her to the door.

"Remember, Baby, if anything goes wrong, you just call!" Fionna smiled and nodded. She started off to the cave where Marshall Lee (the Vampire King) lived.

Fionna climbed over the rocks that blocked the entrance to the cave. She jumped on the porch and knocked on the door. No answer. "Marshall Lee!" Again, no answer. Fionna opened the door. It was dark. Not just because the house was in the cave, but the windows were covered by the black curtains. Fionna checked in the living room, no Marshall. She checked in the kitchen, no Marshall Lee. Then, she heard it.....the slightest creek coming from.....his room. Fionna groaned. She hated going into Marshall Lee's room. There was always a surprise like: it wasn't clean (Scratch that, it was always messy) or he was sleeping... In his boxers, or sometimes..nothing at all. She climbed up the ladder and peeked into his room. There he was sitting next to the window. His face too dark to see.

"Ya know Fi..It's not nice to snoop into people's houses." His voice was deep, but nice. Fionna felt his eyes on her.
