

The Unpredictable Life

By : MusicLover96

Two girls think they have a regular normal life. Parents are gone and they live with their aunt. One girl was raised into the family she looks nothing alike, her friend, and the grown up that is raising her. Does Alex have a past that she doesn't tell anybody and for what reason? The boys have the same problem. Jake and Eric go to school like every other guy at the school. The girls stare at them every day. Are they Familiar? Or are they seeing things? Do the boys hide things? The Ending will leave you breathless... They are running from someone. Someone very dangerous!

Published on Booksie

booksie.com/MusicLover96

Copyright © MusicLover96, 2015
Publish your writing on Booksie.com.

The Unpredictable Life

Three Years Ago

Dear Diary,

People are crazy; they would do anything to get into a club. Trust me, I know. I am one of those people, both me and Alex are. We went in my aunt's car with our cousin; our mom shipped us out for the summer. She didn't want us around anymore. Every time she would yell at Alex and me for not being cautious. We were too rowdy, too loud, etc. We weren't sure what she was talking about because we were only early fourteen age and we never understood things very well. She never told us anything really, she just said that the world is a dangerous place. Alex and I are in ninth grade. We don't have much common sense. Our cousin is trying to get us fake ids so we can go into a club. As much as I want to, I have a bad feeling about it. Alex is totally against it and well, our cousin's mom . . . doesn't know a thing about it. I'm just afraid we will get caught even though we look really mature for our age. Who knows maybe we will get lucky and meet some guys there? I just hope we don't get caught. That's what we are really afraid of. The club is just two blocks around the neighborhood where she lives. It's called the Midnight Wing. People stay there past midnight all the time. Tomorrow is the big day! I can't wait to go to the club and have some real fun. Wish us luck! Madri!