Iruil-oal. Age of fire.

The age of fire started off with the final collapse of the Bnuki Empire and the return of the Jasdarel, or as they are commonly called nowadays dragons. The few shattered remains of civilization learning that the dragons were back decided to go underground. For thousands of years the dragons ruled the surface until a young prince of one of the underground kingdoms released a deadly disease to dragons on to the surface. After a hundred years had past the underground kingdoms came back to the surface to find the dragons were dying but the dragons knew what the cure was. Humans.

So the dragons fought each other to get humans, and to protect themselves humans built huge citadels. After centuries there wasn't any dragons to continue fighting each other but the disease had become far weaker making dragons no longer immortal. The most successful of these kingdoms was Lavevell who became more and more powerful.

And so ended the age of fire.
