

Dead with Emotions(vampires pov)

By : IceBreaker

Sequel to Immortal love will always be dead. My werewolf novel. I know that it's not done but i don't care.

Now that I think about it, this story isn't a sequel really, this story is just told from the point of view of the vampire that Adrienne(the werewolf in novel 1) and her family is trying to catch. His name is Aeryn and his sister goes through alot of trouble when the head vampire kidnaps their brother. Aeryn will do anything to get his brother back. Even if it means sacrificing himself. Meanwhile, his sister, Aries, is caught between love and thirst. A vampire named Addison is trying o teach her to feed from animals and Aried is finding it difficult to live that way. Addison isn't sure if he can be with her if she continues to show her careless ways against humans. Vampires may not be human, but for a fact, they have human emotions.

Chapter 1: Dead with emotions

I growled at her as she looked back at me. Her blood wasn't so appealing. She was a werewolf afterall. I charged at her body and fell on top of her. "Get off of me!" She screamed. But her screams hardly affected me. She was so fun to toy with. This has been going on for months. She let out a small growl and her body immediatley heated up against mine. I grabbed onto her neck and squeezed. Of course I wasn't going to kill her, but as I said, she was fun to toy with.

Her eyes changed to a dark crimson color and I knew this meant she's about to shift into her wolf form. Her strength suddenly increased and I found myself being pushed three yards away and landing on the ground. I quickly got up unharmed as I saw her in wolf form. I offered a small smile as I started walking towards her form. She suddenly started to run towards me. It wasn't fast nor slow. I felt her knock me down to the ground and took a harmless bite of my neck. I pushed her off and stood up. "Come here, doggy." I teased as I used my speed to run deeper into the dark woods.

I could feel her behind me and I smiled when I heard something knock her to the ground. A small growl escape her lips and she was suddenly behind me again. I ducked into the lake and was on the other side in a second.

I stopped running when I realized I wasn't being chased anymore. I was focused on getting back to my human. Angel. She was the girl I feed on every now and then and right now, I was thirsty.

I've been a vampire for over two hundred years. I guess that your life consumes fast when you're a human. I enjoy being undead and immortal. Sometimes, small excitement runs inside of me when I think about the fact that I can't die. Well not easily. If there's anything that I've been told throught my vampire life, it's that vampires aren't exactly immortal, they're just harder to kill and I could respect that because it's a fact.

All of my human qualities have been just about cut off except for my sarcasticness and my talent for being a complete ass as my sister says. My sister is Aries. That horrible name my mother gave her. I guess she had her reasons.

My mom was a good woman.....In just two hours within me being a demon, I drained her of her blood and I felt guilty. Not anymore. Heaven is better than earth. Another fact.

I have a brother also, he's very powerful. He made me and Aries into what we were today. But he's been missing for a while now. I look for him mostly during winter when the sun is down the longest. No. We don't sparkle. We burn unfortunately. I wish the sun didn't effect us so much, that's the only downside to being what I am. Aries was walking toward me. Blood was rolling down her lips. "Hope you don't mind. I fed on Angel." She licked her lips.

I sighed. "You can't be serious. If you want blood, go get it from one of the prostitutes thats around town."

"Well I couldn't help myself. I haven't fed on a human in days."

"I told you that animals won't settle the thirst. You should learn to listen to people who are more intelligent than you." Aries rolled her eyes.

"Well. Adison doesn't understand that I can't live off animals. It's impossible. I mean...I don't understand how he could resist the hot, thick, sweet blood that pumps in the veins of humans."

"So why don't you tell him, that you can't survive off animals?" She let out a brief sigh. "Because it'll hurt his feelings and he's so hot." She replied. I shook my head. Me and Aries found Adison a couple of months ago when he was walking around simultaneously through the woods. We try to get as much vampires into our coven as possible. Adison has been a vampire for over four hundred years and he drinks animal blood. I don't understand how he does it. I'm okay with him though. I know he has a thing for Aries. I wish they would just get together and fuck already. It was irritating seeing her horny and whiny all the time. But I learned to live through it. For now.

Arie's POV

I was walking my brother, Aeryn. It's pronounced like Aaron but my mother became fancy with her spelling of our names. I had one other brother. One of the most powerful vampires there is. His name is Isaiah. I tried to forget about him because I knew he was half way across the fucking world by now. And if he really cared about seeing me and Aeryn, then he'd be here right now. I smelled Addison's scent and my body reacted as I felt him getting closer to us. He came into view smiling at me. I couldn't help but smile back. Addison had dark hair and black eyes. His skin was pale and smooth. Flawless; As was his entire being. Everytime I see him, I feel.....I don't know. His gaze looked to Aeryn. "Your human is asking for you." He said. Aeryn sighed and walked off. Addison came closer to me. "I have to tell you something Addison." I said. He nodded. "You fed off of Angel."

My eyebrows pulled together. "How did you know?" I asked. He bit his lip for a second and looked like he wanted to say something. I waited for his answer. "You.....you like to moan when you're feeding." I didn't even realize that I do that. Maybe I should learn to be quieter. "Why did you seem like you didn't want to tell me that at first?" I asked.

His smile slowly disappeared. "Well.....I thought that you sound sexy when you moan." If I was still human, I would have blushed. But I just smile and stared into his eyes. Something I'd be too embarrassed to do if I was human.

"I honestly don't know what to say to that." I responded. Addison's eyes dropped to the ground. "You know, I really think you're amazing Aries."

"What makes me that way?" I asked. He took a few uncertain steps towards me.

"I guess that seeing you just makes me feel.....weird. But in a good way. Like I feel hyper, energetic whenever you're around. You have such positive energy. Seeing you happy makes me happy. And you're beautiful. Very beautiful."

I bit my lip and stepped closer to him. "I am?" He slowly closed the space between us. "Definitely." His face was so close to mine. I wanted to close the small distance between our lips. But I snapped back to reality. "Um...let's go hunt."

He had a questioning look on his face. "I mean animals." I assured. He slightly smile but I can see the small disappointment on his face from me not kissing him. I wasn't a relationship type of person and plus, the thing was, I didn't want to feel love. I flirted with Addison constantly but I know that if I get any closer, I'd fall in love. And I can't. I'm not human. I can't love him. But I can lust him.

Chapter 2: Need

Chapter 2:Need

Aries's POV

Addison taught me and Aeryn everthing. He taught us how use our powers correctly. Crazy how I was attracted to a vampire much older than me and Aeryn put together. But Addison was very smart. One of the smartest vampires I knew. But the thing was, There was people that was after him. Well, vampires. Rumor has it that he's done too many crimes and is supposed to be sentenced for death. But like I said.....rumor.

The wind whipped through my hair. "I can't smell any animals." I said. Addison was right beside me. "Only because you don't want to. You shut the smell of animals off because you prefer humans." He smiled at me. "I'm sorry." I said. He shook his head. "Don't apologize. It's natural for a vampire to be stuck on human blood." He shrugged.

"Can I confess something?" I asked. He nodded once. "Well, I'm not sure if I want this. If I want to feed on animals. I'm sorry but humans are so.....intoxicating." I was already thirsty again.

"That's okay. You don't have to feed on animals if you don't want to, Aries. I just wanted to see if I could get someone to cross over." He held small disappointment to his face. "I'm sorry." I said again. He shook his head and looked out into the darkness.

He inhaled and then jotted off. I followed him immediatley as he ran through the darkness.

Aeryn's Pov

I loved the sweet taste of blood that landed on my tongue. Angel was a sweet pure innocent girl and the more innocent they are, the sweeter the blood. Angel moaned as my teeth bit through her delicate skin. Her skin tasted just as sweet as her warm blood and I felt myself getting stronger as it flooded through my veins. I almost drained her completely but I stopped myself. I let go of her and stepped away from me. My bite marks healed from her skin. "You took more than usual this time." She commented. My fangs slid back into my gums. "Yeah, I know." I commented.

"You okay, Aeryn?" I nodded once. "I'm going on a little trip soon. I'm going need you to stay here." I said. Angel frowned. "How long will you be gone?" She asked. I shrugged. I never tell humans my vampire business. I'm going to go find my brother.

Isaiah has been gone for a little over two hundred years and I know it wasn't because he wanted to me. Aries never had any respect to him. I didn't blame her honestly. But the first place I was about to search him was The Council. The Council was a vampire coven. They were like the.....vampire version of the government. Translation: You can't fuck with them. I have a feeling that they either killed him or was keeping him captive for all the crimes he's caused. For one, he turned me and Aries against our will and we never knew why. He disappeared a couple weeks after we were changed.

But I wanted to find him and bring him home. But if he's in the council's hands and the Council leader refuse to give him back, I will have to take serious actions. Very serious actions. And those serious actions involves killing the Council Leader.

"Don't tell Aries. She'll go crazy knowing I'm planning to leave her here." Angel nodded.

Dead with Emotions(vampires pov)

"What exactly are you planning on doing?" She asked.

"I'm going to get blood. Wolf blood."
