

Vagrant Wings

Vagrant Wings

By : The story

It was just an average day for Caspien but a sudden anomaly occurs that will ignite the journey of a lifetime

Published on Booksie

booksie.com/The story

Copyright © The story, 2015
Publish your writing on Booksie.com.

Table of Contents

Vagrant Wings Chapter 1

Vagrant Wings : Chapter 1

Chapter one: Let the games begin. The city of Sanctum was in an uproar. Everyone that was everyone was at the Crux Stadium to watch a much loved game of Speedball. 250000 seats were full only a few were free. The players lined up ready to claim their victory of the night. Beeeeeeeeeeeep The first round was in motion. Lights lit up as a glass rectangle box surrounded the players filling up the colossal stadium. A ball flew up from a hole in the floor. The game had begun... Caspien sat in the changing rooms watching the game from a Sphere. He smiled a little. 5 years and the Braska regens still stick with the same strategy. Caspien stretched and checked the clock. 5 minutes to go. The score was currently 3-1, The Cavaliers coming out on top. Swish. A ball hit the net. 'And it looks like the Cavaliers have taken the match, and the crowd is getting roused for the final game. Up next we have the 50 shades versus the Valients' The two teams stood either side of the rectangle pitch. A whistle blew and the rectangle pitch sprouted a reinforced glass box. The red light glowed. '3,2,1. Green light' The game had started. Caspien immediately ran up the glass wall and jumped grabbing the ball before another player stole it. Caspien cursed for the bad luck. He gave chase and ran after it. Out of nowhere one of his team ran head on towards the ball. He efficiently swiped the ball and slid under the opposing players legs to throw it to Caspien. Suddenly a girl from the 50 shades jumped over him and took the ball. She ran pretty fast for her small size. The two defenders Yana and Rin steadied themselves and made a dash for the ball. Rin tackled but the girl flipped over her and to unfortunately meet with Yana who forcefully snatched the ball. He dropped and kicked it to Minx, who caught it and charged to the enemies net. The first defender (a big ugly brute who probably hadn't had a bath in a year or so) grabbed him by the legs and forced him over. Minx in one last attempt threw it to Caspien, who was conveniently close by to the net. Caspien ran up the wall and jumped to grab the ball when suddenly he was hit by a force so hard that he was slammed into the wall and was out cold...

Vagrant Wings

Created from Booksie.com

Generated: 2015-01-31 12:45:56