The Mermaid and the Pearl

She does gracefully sail through the misty sea of pale blue a pearl clutched in her hand.

A mermaid wrought from my dreams traveling to where sunlight gleams and she comes to rest on the sand.

She carefully peers at her treasure rolling it slowly, trying to measure the manner of thing, she has found.

Not sure of what it is she does behold she extends her hand, loosens her hold and lets it fall to the ground.
