My Dark Lover part 1

Author's Note: Things happen really fast in this story. It's Part 1. Enjoy...or don't. I don't care.

The second she stepped into the classroom, I knew there was something different about her. Her hair was long and black like oil. Her eyes were dark and cold. Her skin was Ivory and smooth. She was flawless. "What is your name, dear?" Mrs. Waltz asked. "Jade." She answered. She glanced at me for a short moment and then back at Mrs. Waltz. She was beautiful but I can tell she was tough deep down inside. "Sit next to Aidan." Mrs. Waltz said. The second I heard her say my name, I became nervous. Jade looked straight at me as I looked at her. She walked over to me and sat down in the seat beside me. How did she know I was Aidan? I slowly looked at her from the corner of my eye. "Stop looking at me." She said staring straight ahead. "Who me?" She slowly turned to look at me. "Yeah, you." I looked back ahead. Yeah, there would be no chance of me and her, I can see us fighting over everything.

When class was over, I grabbed my books. I risked another glance at her. She was already looking at me. "What?" I asked. She rolled her eyes and left out of the room. Bitch.

I walked to my locker and opened it. I threw my books and looked around me simultaneously. On the other side of the hall, there she was. She was looking back at me. Her eyes dark and cold. She gave me a small smile and then flipped me off. She was starting to piss me off. I slammed my locker shut and went over to her. "What the hell is your problem?" I asked. She looked at me with an evil glint in her eye. "What is your problem? You keep staring at me and it's annoying."

"I'm sorry, I didn't realize that looking at people was against the law." She sighed in frustration and grabbed three books. "It's not. It's just annoying so don't fucking look at me!" She yelled. I slammed her locker shut. "Gladly." I said as I walked away.

Just thinking of her made me angry. Why was I even think of her at all? She pissed me off. When lunch came, I was sitting with my friends, Shane, Jake and Steven. Shane was talking about some girl he was with. My attention wasn't on him anymore when She walked in. Fuck. Why was she so beautiful? This fucking sucks. I didn't realize that Shane was calling my name. "What?" I asked looking at him. "You're staring at her like you want to fuck her." He glanced at Jade who sat at a small round able alone.

"I don't. She's a bitch." Steven laughed. "What did she do?" I sighed. She didn't even do anything. "She's just.....insanely hot." I said. "Go talk to her then." Shane said. I shook my head. "We've had horrible encounters."

"So?" I sighed and glanced at her. She was sitting back in her chair with her boots in the chair next to her and she was reading a book with a black cover. Her eyes suddenly looked at mine. I quickly looked away. "I'm telling you, there's something weird about that girl. She knew my name before Mrs. Waltz ever said it. Everytime I'm thinking about her, she looks at me."

"Sounds like a vampire to me." Steven said. I rolled my eyes. When lunch was over, I went to my next two classes. She didn't have those classes with me but I kept thinking about her.

When school was over, I walked out and saw Jade. She ran her fingers through her black wavy hair and looked up at the sun. What was she? Because no one is just that insanely beautiful. She suddenly looked at me. Fuck. I turned and walked away. I decided to take a short cut through the woods. Well it wasn't actually a short cut. It took longer this way to get home but me and my family disliked each other so I always hated going home. I heard some noise. Like almost a screeching sound. I looked around. I should probably get out of these woods. Just when I was about to turn, I saw a girl. I automatically knew who it was. Jade. But....her eyes were all black. Not just her pupils but every part of her eyes were black. Her hair was straight and her skin looked as if it was rotting. I was scared to approach her. Especially when she looked like a fucking demon.

She suddenly looked in my direction. I hid behind a tree and I heard a growl escape from her mouth. What the hell?

She slowly started walking in my direction. Oh shit. I started running as fast as I could. But I stopped when she was suddenly in front of me. "Are you spying on me?" She asked in a cold tone. Her eyes were back to normal. Her hair was curly again and her skin looked back normal. "What the fuck are you?" She raised her eyebrow. "I knew since the second you walked in that there was something fucked up about you. What the hell was that, that I just saw?" She turned but I grabbed her arm and as soon as I did, I felt weird. Dizzy, as if I was about to lose consciousness. She slowly turned to look in my eyes and her's were black. I fell onto the ground barely able to breathe. I looked my arm and it was.....rotting. "Don't touch me." She growled. The weird feeling I had was gone. I could breathe again and my skin returned to normal. I looked up at her. "What are you?" I asked. She shook her head and turned and walked away. I got up. For some reason, it was hard to stay away from her. I was drawn to her. I followed her out of the woods. "Wait!"

"Why do you keep following me?" She asked as she turned around. "I'm already suspicious, you might as well tell me." I said. She ran her fingers through her hair again and sighed. "It's against the rules to tell a human what I am."

"So you're basically saying you're not human." I said. She narrowed her eyes. "I didn't say that. I'm just saying.....You know what? Fuck it. It's none of your business."

"Yes it is. I don't know what the hell I saw back there but I want to know what it was." She shook her head. "Well if you don't know what you saw, it doesn't concern you."

"Okay, just tell me something. Are you a vampire?" I asked. "No, you idiot." She said walking away from me. But she didn't imply that vampires didn't exist. "They Don't!" She yelled. I ran after her. "You read my mind. What are you?" She stopped walking and slowly looked at me. "Even if I was something other than human, you wouldn't believe me." I pursed my lips. "Try me." She took a deep breath. "Fine. I'm a Demi God." She said. I raised my eyebrows. "Let me guess, you don't know what that is, do you?" I shook my head. "A person who is half god and half human." She answered.

I had to take a second to take that all in. "So, your parents is a god and a human?" She nodded. I sat back against a tree and she sat down across from me. "Gods as in aphrodite, Zeus, Poseidon?" She nodded again. I never knew greek mythology existed. My dad always told me it was a myth. But now here is this girl right in front of me telling me she's a fucking Demi God. "So is your mom a god or your dad?"

"Dad." She answered immediatley. "Which god?" I asked. She hesitated and stood up and wiped the dirt from her black jeans. Her eyes stared deeply into mine. "I am the daughter of Hades." She finally answered. My eye grew wide. "H-Hades? As in the god of the U-Underworld?" She nodded slowly. I bit on my lip. For once in my life, I was scared of a female. She could kill me in a second if she wanted to. "I'm not going to hurt you, Aidan." She said softly. For once, she didn't have a cold dead look in her eyes. "So.....Persephone is your mother." I said. She shook her head. "No. My dad mated with a human....against her will. I came here to look for her. I've been in the underworld long enough and my dad says if I could find her, then I can stay with her."

"Do you have a clue of what she looks like?" I asked. She nodded. "My dad sent me an image in his mind of what she looked like. I saw her sweaty and crying on a bed. And then my dad's face came into the image. He was taking a baby from her arms and my mother started crying as he took the baby away from her. And that's the only memory I have of her." she shrugged.

"I can help you find her." She shook her head. "Don't. I will do it alone. Even if I have to call other gods to help me." A small smile appeared and it was so beautiful. I almost melted. "Walk me home?" She asked. I nodded and placed my hands in my pockets. "So is your home....hell?" She laughed softly. "Yeah. Actually it is, but I also live in a cottage on earth." I nodded and looked down as the leaves crunched under my shoes. "So Hades named you Jade?" I asked. She shook her head and looked down at the ground as we walked. "No. My Demi god name is Hermionie. Jade is my human name." I thought both were pretty. "So. What are your powers? What can you do?" She smiled. "Well, one, I can read minds. Only sometimes. It's not always an option. I can control the weather sometimes. But not make it sunny with a rainbow. I can only make bad weather. Hurricanes, tsunamis, tornados." Jesus.

"That's how it is when you're the daughter of the devil." She shrugged. "What else?" I asked. A smirk appeared on her face. "I can levitate. Want to see?" She asked. I nodded. This was so awesome and weird. Who knew that I'd meet a Demi God today? Or ever? Whoever knew they even existed? She looked around first and then closed her eyes and took a deep breath. She opened her eyes and they were black. She held her arms out on the sides of her and her feet suddenly lifted from the ground. What the fuck? I smiled up at her and she smiled down at me. She slowly planted her feet back on the ground and her eyes turned back to normal. "Why do your eyes get like that?" She shrugged. "It just happens every time I use one of my powers." I thought about some more questions I could ask her. I wanted to know everything. "So what about that whole touching thing." She blushed for a second. "About that, if any human touches me, they'll start to rot and then they'll.....die." I gulped. Well then we can't touch each other. That was fine with me but.....I would like to touch her at least once. "Does the same goes for gods?" I asked. She shook her head. "No, gods can touch me without rotting." She answered.

A small cottage came into view. She stopped walking and looked at me. "Well...this is my house. Thank you for walking me home. Today has been weird and awkward." I nodded agreeing with her. "Wait, one more question." I said. She smiled and shook her head. "Ask me tomorrow. When you pick me up for school tomorrow." I raised my eyebrow. How is she just going to automatically assume I was going to? But I was suddenly excited to do it. "One more thing I can do." she said. I looked into her eyes. "Mind control." She whispered. She slowly turned and opened the door to her cottage, walked in and shut the door behind her. Unbelievable. I like her...alot. Maybe too much. I'm actually falling for the daughter of Hades.
