

Blind by Choice

By : Juggernaut

â Sir, are you visually impaired?â â No.â â Then why you were wearing a blind fold?â â Just to feel safe.â â How?â â I donâ t want my fellow travelers in the plane threatened by my looks and type of my clothing.â â How the blind fold helps?â â Well, people feel safe around blind men and pregnant women.â

Published on Booksie

booksie.com/Juggernaut

Copyright © Juggernaut, 2015 Publish your writing on Booksie.com.

Blind by Choice

Blind by Choice

Subba Rao

â Sir, are you visually impaired?â â No.â

â Then why you were wearing a blind fold?â â Just to feel safe.â

â How?â

â I donâ t want my fellow travelers in the plane threatened by my looks and type of my clothing.â â How the blind fold helps?â â Well, people feel safe around blind men and pregnant women.â â I see your point but we cannot allow blind folded people into the plane.â

â Blind fold also keeps my own irrational thoughts under check.â â What you mean?â

â I feel overwhelmed around African American people.â â Why?â

â They are too emotional.â â I see, how about around whites?â â They are very sensitive people and that makes me nervous.â â How about Orientals?â â They look too smart and I feel stupid around them.â â OK, how about people from Middle East?â â I feel envious of their oil wealth and I feel poor around them.â â How about Hispanics?â â They all appear good natured and I feel bad for myself.â â Umm, how about people of your own kind?â â You mean South Asians.â â Well, whatever.â

â What you mean?â

â Well, I donâ t know where South Asia is.â â I donâ t feel comfortable around them too.â â How come?â

â They are always patronizing and philosophical.â â Well, I suggest you consider driving than flying since we donâ t allow blind folded passengers without a certificate of legal blindness or some sort of health condition that requires blind fold in the plane.â

â I thought by wearing blind fold in the plane I can create a controversy and a big pay offer from my publishers.â

â Sir, it is a free country but still you canâ t get on board with a blind fold just to look blind and stir up controversy.â

"Damm, everytime I come out with a bright plan to advance myself somebody will throw a wet blanket on it, why?" pondered Juggernaut.

Blind by Choice

Blind by Choice

Created from Booksie.com

Generated: 2015-01-31 12:10:05