"Light up the Pie"

â Light Up the Pieâ

Made-For-T.V. Movie

â Grandmaâ s going to make you a pie.â Well, itâ s 'Light, and Get Away!'

â No, thatâ s okay, grandma.â the kids want to say but there would be no stopping her from trying

When grandma tries to cook, people are lucky not dying

This movie burns white-hot, for a good cook, grandma is not

All her grandkids try to discourage her, but the kindly lady insists on trying to stir up something. She canâ t even boil water

When she cooks, itâ s a culinary slaughter

From her raw burgers, to her char-broiled treats, this crazy woman should just take a seat, and let someone else do the cooking

Her food will sneak up and hurt you, if youâ re not looking Weâ re now hard at work on the sequel, â Grandma Serves Timeâ and all things being equal, it, like this movie, should be absolutely awesome

Youâ ll never view something served by your grandma; lumps of inedible s**t, quite the same way, ever again

They might get served something rotten, or, is it a cinder that used to be some food

Then, theyâ re screwed. Not wanting to be rude, theyâ ll force themselves to choke it down

"Light up the Pie"

Yes, the kids all ralph, when grandma's around

So they choke it down, then, looking like a bug-eyed freak, they'll run for the bathroom to blow chunks. They'll reek like hell when you give their grandma a hug goodbye â Thanks, grandma, for the awesome-tasting, flaming pie!â
