"Whatever it Takes"

â Whatever It Takesâ

Made-For-T.V. Movie

â Follows a bunch of bastards as they do â Whatever It Takesâ to win, and screw over people who abide by the rules

By cheating, theyâ re really booting honest people, in the family jewels

These bastards know every dirty trick in the book

These doorknobs will never be mistook for some fine, upstanding dudes

Instead, theyâ re mean and rude

Yes, finishing first is all they give a s**t about

If they come in second, these poor-sports pout and complain that it, â Just wasnâ t fair!â

The other competitors, they donâ t care if they happen to come up a little bit short of first place, they were only in it for fun, not to abort all the good memories, all the good will

No matter that they lost, they still have a good time. But the fun of competing is lost on these dudes. If they lose, all the others get is a frosty, ice-cold, hateful, vengeful â death stare.â

and crying and name-calling, is none-too-rare

See, all of them are being pushed to win by their immature fathers, who are living vicariously though their poor children

If they win, great. But if they should lose, then

"Whatever it Takes"

they are told that, "Second place is for losers!"

Then they are told they have to win by their boozier father, who thinks they've been coddled and protected their whole sissified lives, by their mother. If they win, it's, "high-fives!"

But if they don't, oh boy, look out, for their bastard dad's have forgotten what sports are supposed to be about

They are looked at like something that's stuck to the bottom of dad's shoe

"No kid of mine ever loses! I've been disgraced."

They look at their kid with a totally disgusted look upon their face

The real reason they think that way is that they were picked on when they'd play sports. See, they sucked the big one, and looked like a pansy when they'd run

"But, Junior, he'll never be picked on, because he'll win and be tough

Just enjoying the game is not fricking enough

He's got to kick some a**! Winning is all that matters

"If there's some kind of record, he will shatter it! No one will be able to laugh at my kid, because winning defines who you are. If, somehow, he did manage to lose, then he sucks as a person, and I'll fly into a rage

No kid of mine will take the gas pipe on the athletic stage!"

Yes, their father is a complete embarrassment to "Little Junior"

All their dad cares about is coming out on top in the final score

"Whatever it Takes"

So, tune in our movie and see the awful, albeit real truth. See what your dadâs been feeding you, is pure bull-s**t!
