

The Mirror of Life

By : Ryan Gillen

A short poem illustrating the paradoxical factors of life

Published on Booksie

booksie.com/Ryan Gillen

Copyright © Ryan Gillen, 2015
Publish your writing on Booksie.com.

The Mirror of Life

P { margin-bottom: 0.08in; }

In darkness light must prevail

In light shadows must entail

Merciful morals must exist in society

As well as vicious vices to Balance the community

Religion without science

Is Insanity

Science without religion

Lacks clarity

A fool is lonely without the wise to pity

The wise are alone without the fool's humanity

Love is meaningless

without the sting of hate

Hate is meaningful as long as it inspires love and fate

War is necessary as long as it attains prosperity

Peace is needed to ensure

A world's safety

Maths is cold and soulless without the spirit of literature

The Mirror of Life

Literature is irrational without

Maths intuitive nature

A man is lethargic

without a women's caring

A women is uninspired

without man's daring

Diversity does not inspire equality

Equality inspires

Diversity

Life is incomplete without

'the certainty of death

Death is nothing without

Life's breath

The Mirror of Life

The Mirror of Life

Created from Booksie.com

Generated: 2015-01-29 15:58:13