

Old Wooden House

By : alizabsinah

The memories of a little girl house that has been demolished for the sake of modernization

Published on
Booksie

booksie.com/alizabsinah

Copyright © alizabsinah, 2015
Publish your writing on Booksie.com.

Old Wooden House

That House

That House stood still

More than 100 years

Pre-exist before World War I

Survive World War II

As majestic as it is

The house aging beautifully

Seems like an abandoned place

Still a family live in

Just a shattered house

Build from old wood

Pestsâ swellings the walls

Waiting to be demolish

The roofs are broken

Raining inside the house

Getting a basins for drops

For not getting wet

So poor as a family

Old Wooden House

Old Wooden House

Meat is scarcity precious

Anchovies the only solution

Feeling hungry every time

There is a little girl

Wondering of her ruined life

Pondering of her dark future

Bantering for joys of suffering

With her poker face

Always shines sweetest smiles

Keep laughing for consolation

Asking to be taken away

Looking from dull window

Miserable path ahead her

Thinking of being happy

Trying to be happy

Staring at her reflection

Saw unkempt appearances

See wept flowing eyes

Yet, still tempts for smiles

How hard she wishes

She can run away

Old Wooden House

Choose another road of
Being normal like others
Her tears has dry
Long ago knowing fate
Will not change at all
Of her miserable life

She takes her heart
Put it in a box
As hard as a diamond
And accepting her destiny

Promising herself
Talking to herself
One sweet day
It will only be a memory

Now 15 years has bygone
How fast time has flew
Reflecting her old pictures
Reminiscing her past history

Now, that little girl
Have brightest smiles
For she is grateful
Being the happiest woman

Old Wooden House

Life is hard Fate is tough

But she walks on her path

Alone with strong courage

Knowing she will succeed

Her heart for now

Has been taken outside

From the diamond box

Glittering beautifully like a star

Old Wooden House

Old Wooden House

Created from Booksie.com

Generated: 2015-01-26 23:23:17