Through A Bubble

Through A Bubble

These are two photographs I took of floating bubbles, I got my husband to blow the bubbles and I followed their drifting course until I liked the background that was reflected through them. I then blacked out the surrounds of the bubble so just the abstract reflection inside was kept.

The third photograph is a bubble again but as it was drifting I blew on it making it move fast across a dark background. The result was a blurred movement with the blue light from the tv reflecting off the bubbles surface, almost like smoke.
