

A Violet Agape

A Violet Agape

By : goldenpetal

Poems from Love

Published on Booksie

booksie.com/goldenpetal

Copyright © goldenpetal, 2015
Publish your writing on Booksie.com.

A Violet Agape

True colors represent time held in place and not disturbing the mind do not say life is sad unless you want to see it be so.

Violet is a grace given to you to say this love I know is true peace is sure to grace your path for I know that His love will last. Pleasure and pain are sure to come for those whose grace is in place and I do not pretend to know how it all happens yet I can still enjoy this day. Kumquats are sweet to those who try yet it is hard to describe so things have to be experienced for there is none to compare. Describe to me love on this day and I will hear it said a hundred different ways for in the end it will be clear for they have said it has come near. Give to all an experience and all will be a memory yet give to one a true heart felt word and it is memorized as love. I need to be seen as true yet all cannot describe to you for I must be experienced for words do not justify how grand the perimeters are for you if you read the word today and accept my love for you. Trouble and pain bring some close and others praise my name because they love with a heart so true and never give in to unbelief. How can I experience the ways of love from a distance for all I see is limited based on others experience. Do you know someone from what others say or do you need to spend time to say I understand this heart of love because I have seen this truth today.

Come lets take a look today see the realm I give to you let pure joy come across your face as true freedom will cover you. Some say I am blessed from above and others say I have much luck yet the latter has no peace in the palm of much needed grace. In a moment without any words life will change and never be heard by a squawking parrot so true for he never listens to you when you say I love you because his voice will comfort him so all he know is what he hears never listening to a still small voice.

Look on the horizon what things do you see beauty or pain what shall it be for both surround you on all sides yet only one will survive. For in the end one will say this is truly the very best way. Give all credit to God today and see more blessings come your way. Let the truth be told for sure that Jesus is an open door giving to you all you want with no perimeter for His great love. Let love flow like a falling rain and receive this peace just the same for He never changes from the truth it is His great love that sustains you. I give to you the King of Kings and ask for just one thing listen intently to His voice for in it is released His great love.

Amen.

A Violet Agape

A Violet Agape

Created from Booksie.com

Generated: 2015-02-01 19:30:46