Tear of anger

These tears that fall are not from sadness nor are they from joy or fear. These tears that are falling they are the ones that are never understood. These tears do not fall behind closed doors nor do they fall miles away. These tears are falling, they are from anger. These are the tears that leave a scar behind. Scar's that will never fade away. And if these tears keep falling, one day there will be no more room for another scar, And if that day ever sheds light then the tears will never fade away. These are the tears that fall before you, fueled by rage. And this is my curse the tears of anger and one day they never stop falling and if i am miles away.
