

In Other Words*

By : LauraMarieAlways

Hope~Laura Marie "Concrete jungle, held fast between these walls. My home is a fortress where no light shines. In this world there is only darkness, nothing bright bleeding through; There, then, is the red! So vibrant, so true! From the darkness there is light, from grey, color; I had longed for something more, I had once sought to bloom. And from beneath the ruins where I was searching, there you stood-- And once more I have found hope, sweet hope to guide me through." Read more like this throughout the collection of poems penned from the heart of yet another aspiring poet; tales of love and of tragedy, coalescing to form a beautiful painting of the life of a lonely soul.

Published on Booksie

booksie.com/LauraMarieAlways

Copyright © LauraMarieAlways, 2015
Publish your writing on Booksie.com.

In Other Words*

In Other Words*

In Other Words*

Created from Booksie.com

Generated: 2015-01-29 04:40:03