

Sigh of an Angel

Sigh of an Angel

By : A Stranger

I don't have a summary for this one. But a chance meeting has rekindled that part of me which has been asleep for a very long time. I hope you enjoy. AS

Published on Booksie

booksie.com/A Stranger

Copyright © A Stranger, 2015
Publish your writing on Booksie.com.

Sigh of an Angel

I took a chance and started an e-communication giving it no never-mind A vain hope, cast out without expectations.
What startled me,
beyond the response of a beauty captured by pixels of grey and brown, greens, gold, and purple, was a sensed need underlying the written text
But most of all, her eyes Chocolate brown and coffee black alive with deep character

A Sadness

I have not met her Yet, open, raw, exposed to that look I was I know it is a photograph yet it pulled at the very fibre of what I am A look of sadness
not born of pity
but of loss

Sigh of an Angel

A look of sadness

Expressing a yearning for love

So Absolute

My soul shivered

And my heart cried.

Bathed by the phosphorant light

Of an LCD screen

I felt her soul reach out and caress mine..

Like the Sigh of an Angel

Sigh of an Angel

Sigh of an Angel

Created from Booksie.com

Generated: 2015-01-27 23:17:11