the world we THINK we know?

Why? Is a question that is always ignored

But itâs a query that should be explored

For everything must have a reason and effect

It isnât something we should just neglect.

When asked what we want to achieve

We cover it up, shove it up our sleeve

Wars and terror that we all inflict

Images that I dare not depict.

All of these things that are everyday

And no reasons that we care to say

Everyone kept away from reality

Nothing but lies for us to see.

Governments chosen as the best concealer

People to hide the truth lead by a dealer

A man who fronts all of the madness

But takes no responsibility for the sadness.

the world we THINK we know?

the world we THINK we know?
