

The Dark Depths of Your Eyes: Forest

The Dark Depths of Your Eyes: Forest

By : dlaura69

Second part to The Dark Depths of Your Eyes: Snow

Published on Booksie

booksie.com/dlaura69

Copyright © dlaura69, 2015
Publish your writing on Booksie.com.

The Dark Depths of Your Eyes: Forest

Darkness is all I see

As I open my eyes

Have I become blind

Or am I in a daze

I know not where I am

But I am able to hear

It sounds like paradise

And at last I begin to see

I look up and see green all around

I try to move a little

But it appears that I cannot

So I lay there afraid of whatâs out there

But now I can move

I sit upright and take a look around

Green surrounds me from everywhere

I hear something and walk towards the sound

Green upon green it seems to never end

And then my path is cleared

Like f the greenness was waiting to reveal this

The Dark Depths of Your Eyes: Forest

Another woman, this one in a green gown

I stare again like I did before

You look like the other one

But you have red fiery hair

While she had dark gloomy hair

I see you standing on the cliff

Your thinking, of what, I know not

I move towards you

But you move forwards too

I stop and stare again

Afraid of moving I listen

The waterfall rushing downward

There is nothing but peace

But a cold wind rushes through the green

As if you were its main focus

Coaxing you to jump I think

And without a second thought you jumped

A splash is all I hear

No sound escaped your lips on your way down

And without a thought I ran as well

No thought entered me as I took a jump

The Dark Depths of Your Eyes: Forest

Cold water welcomes me

I try to look for you but you are gone

I can feel movement

Darkness is coming my way

Fear enters my soul

As I feel your touch

I turn around

And find the dark depths of your eyes

The Dark Depths of Your Eyes: Forest

The Dark Depths of Your Eyes: Forest

Created from Booksie.com

Generated: 2015-02-01 12:15:28