From Youth

humor me and tell me that there is still love in beauty that all the innocence hasn't been sucked from this world that i'm living more than a lie as i feel it that maybe someday i can wake-up and be born and tell me that roses taste better than smell I want to feel grace and eat color and be blinded by hope but it's hard for me to grasp more than this poverty staring at me always judging with open fist and tell me the best caress in the world is from sandpaper and that there's no feeling better than coating those wounds in salt i will believe every word you say darling for i am a teenager and the world has lost hope
