When Fairy Tales Roamed Free

Lost was a time we all shared, one we never had to hide from.
Where we roamed the streets and let our skin shine bright, not worrying about being found out.

The sun was a treasure,
the moon was our gold.

We faced our enemies
and got chased underground.
Hidden from the world for good, long goes the myths of vampires ruling the world, when werewolf's turned to fairy tales told to make your children stay home well you slept.

When the bridge between both worlds was locked and the key washed from our hands.

When we stopped seeing fairies, yet told the children they were still real.

Lost will be the day when only children could believe.

Everyone will finally see, what I never stopped believing.

For one night and one day, as we sleep sound the gates will be opened,

the world will be brought together

When Fairy Tales Roamed Free

and our fairy tales will once again roam free.
