

Danger of words

By : Ian Dawn

It is a homage to all those of us that have been hurt by a simple word or misplaced sentence. Thanks to a fellow booksie writer who inspired this as I wrote a comment on a poem.

Danger of words

Words cut deeper than the knife we wield,
They will often break thru our emotional shield.

Why bother to use a weapon from the start,
When a well placed word will break my heart.

A wound will heal in time so they say,
But a verbal dagger cut will never go away.

Why choose a bullet to destroy my brain,
When a well chosen word, will drive me insane.

How can I love you when your words besiege?
Deeper than any sword or knife could reach.

Even tho nothing of what you say is real,
Try as I might these wounds will just not heal.

So it is with survival in mind that I must say
You need to leave me to die and go away
