By : Ian Dawn

Another of my old works from 1980 I wrote this after having this very dream. Or was it!

It all started when I closed my eye,
The darkness, the cold, and the night.
I knew you were near, I could feel your presence,
As your silhouette moves, like a stalking cat,
And your black eyes swirl like liquid night.

I was scared, but not frightened,
I felt like panicking, but stayed calm.
I took all of these emotions into account.
Then rolled on my side and closed my eyes.
But you were still there.

It felt like hours you were there,
I could feel your cold breath on my cheek.
I dare not move to show you I know.
So I lay still like a statue, I peek,
And I can see you clearly now.

Your arm about to plunge into my flash,
The weapon glistened in the darkness
Its coming closer..... closer.....,
Its in my body, its here! I scream!
Wake up! Light on: my god what a dream
