

A Man's Fickle Heart

By : Mistress of Word Play

This poem was written about men, but it can pertain to women as well. I wrote it from a woman's perspective because I am a woman.

A Man's Fickle Heart

There is a bittersweet pain in knowing a love which could be overflowing is lost amid the sorrow of by-gone days.
Ever present in a heartbeat or silent tear an endless rending of the soul, another year how quickly love grows yet it never stays.
Man is a fickle creature with a heart of stardust in not seeing what he has, endlessly search he must for what he thinks he does not own.
So carelessly he tosses away the gentle soul with time and space his actions feel the toll of the love discarded for the now, unknown.
