TELEPHONE A FRIEND

that multi-chipped computer wrapped inside that plastic shell was once the little brainchild of ol' alexander bell

he hollered out for watson when spilled acid made him wince and now it seems the whole wide world has hollered ever since

we telephone our neighbors and we telephone our folks we cry about our sorrows and we laugh about our jokes

but mister bell would never guess what might have happened next now, we don't even need to speak we merely have to text

we text in weirdly coded ways we text an LOL
we text our joyous escapades we text our trips to hell

perhaps it's now too easy to just mass communicate we might make bad decisions in our hurry to create

so think before you type for when you click that key to send your secrets can turn deadly when you tell a phony friend
