Your Falling, Your Screaming your falling; your screaming; your running with pain out of this world and into your own shutting down all the lights and into the darkness i can still hear you screaming within and hurting with agony all the world around is surrounded by pain so how can we exist in a world so vain i can see you threw the mask you put on and see all the tears inside your eyes and knowing completely the pain that lies inside because your busting threw the walls and into your own world saying your okay when your actually going insane you know that im right and you may want to deny but thats okay thats okay...if you want to deny you can stay in the pouring rain
