your slipping away

your crying

in your dreams your noticed in reality your fading away no-one to save you when your crying sitting alone with tears rolling down your soft cheeks knowing that you will never have the guy you want to comfort your silent screams you confide in losers that continually break your heart just to have some kind of human contact while your searching for someone to cling to the bads stuffs easier to believe than the good things your slipping away into the darkness you walk knowing theres no fairness in the light.....
