the ongoing life

The lifestyle of a teen turning into an adult

So many details, so little time to compromise in our little minds

I wish time hadn't of flew by when i heard the shocking news of a loved one's passing

The Lords holding my life at this point im unsure of the details withn my little brain slowly concentrated jumping from one detail to another the adult takes over and wants to continue independence

But life is slipping by out of the corner of her eye

She doesnt know why but she cries everynight wondering why her grandpa had died

Was he too old to go on any longer or did he even care about his father?

My mothers tears became my heart cry But then i heard sigh

Here his life lies beneath the eyes and hearts of families.

NObody needs this esecially a teen in her fifteen to sixteen range slowly she kneels down and says father i cannot go on any longer

Her father picks her up and says you dont need that

She looks up to the sky as a tear falls and suddenly its bouncing off the wall

Slowly she stands up tall wipes away the tears and says father i know your here.

This is drenched sorrow relief

Turning from a teen to new queen bee.
