

The End of a Good Man

By : veltshmertz

This is a short story about a man's death. It was inspired by people's different wishes regarding how to end their days and how in the end, it all seems so silly. The misunderstandings stem from a type of close-mindedness - the dying man has other wishes entirely than those around him, yet the community overshadows an old man's dying wish.

The End of a Good Man

"we can still hope his soul will be pitied by a guardian angel".

"Such a good man".
