My name is a shape, but not the actual form in your body...

I'm inside you, and you own me, yet you wish to give me to someone else...

You say I have been broken, many times, but my structure was never meant be broken but to keep going...

You say I'll mend in time, and it'll get easier, but you forget - I was never broken, and my purpose is easy enough;

So there is no need to mend what was never broken, and no need to simplify what was never changed...

You ask me questions, on what to do, but I can't actually talk, so it's up to you...
