

Keep Calm and Cuddle Up

By : jellaroo

One person's view on love.

Published on Booksie

booksie.com/jellaroo

Copyright © jellaroo, 2015
Publish your writing on Booksie.com.

Keep Calm and Cuddle Up

Have you ever met someone so amazing that all your thoughts and dreams were about them? You spend all of your time dreaming about them, imagining out scenarios of them in your life, and then wishing that they would come true? Fantasising about spending your life with them, having your own family, having tiny little children to call yours?

When they stand up on tiptoe and kiss your forehead, you feel completely safe. When you snuggle up against them, lay your head in their lap and feel them slowly stroke your hair, you're utterly in love. When you fall asleep in their arms and suddenly wake up, you see the look on their face and realise they've been watching you sleep and you can just tell that they love you.

You would be prepared to do anything for them. You would willingly sacrifice yourself for them. Nothing matters more than their happiness. If the slightest thing irritates them, you would do your best to fix it.

You see cute little quotes about love and instantly think of this person. You daydream of them quoting love quotes at you, you daydream of your lives being intertwined, you daydream of falling asleep with them.

When something's wrong, the first person you want to talk to is them. Whether it's about family, friends, your pet, or even a tummy ache, they're the first person you tell.

You want to share everything with them. Your thoughts, feelings, photos, stories - everything. You find a quote or a book or movie or place or sock that's just perfect, and you simply have to tell them about it. And you do.

You're just completely in love with them, and there's no better feeling than knowing that they love you back.

Keep Calm and Cuddle Up

Keep Calm and Cuddle Up

Created from Booksie.com

Generated: 2015-01-29 07:34:32