Eternal hope: chapter 3

Chapter 3: Fiancee?what's going on?I was left speechless and I waited for my father to explain the sudden news."Yuri, before you were born, Takumi's father and I agreed to unite our business together through your marriage with his son". Marriage? I always thought that marriage are for two people who loves each other and decided that they will spent their whole life together.But regarding to my situation, there is no love at all, I don't even know who this man is. I lowered my head and i noticed that tears were falling down my cheeks, why am I crying? Is it because that I feel betrayed or was it because that before I could gain my freedom, another man will place new pair of chains on my hands?I decided that I had enough, I want to be free from now on, I don't want anyone to keep me from reaching my freedom. The room fell silent and before I know it, I stood up from my chair and started to walk through the door. My father tried to stop me from leaving but i slapped his hands away and started to run through the hallway and went outside the gate. I didn't know why but I just couldn't stopped running, it seems that my feet just decided to move on it's own. Suddenly, I realized that I was standing in some kind of forest. My dreams were coming true,I was stuck in complete darkness again and like in my dreams, I saw a light ahead of me but this time, I wanted to change my faith. I ran away from away from the light and suddenly, a hand grabbed my wrist.....to be continued
