Think about it?!

Think about it?!

The world is going through a subconscious, yet conscious undergoing of one "race". The world as we know it will become one race. Everyone is mixed or trying to become mixed. This is actually a bitter sweet movement, for the reason being that race is man made...Each "race" is full of self hatred. (The darker people want to become lighter and vice versa. Darker shade people bleach, while lighter tan). When it is all said and done all races will become one and all cultures except for Western culture will extinct. People will later realize that "he/she" that hates themselves now will be like gold in the future...it would be nice to learn to love who you are now.
