

I don't want to die like you

I don't want to die like you

By : coolkatz0

A poem i wrote today at school about my fate and my great uncles fate. My great uncle died from cancer around 5 years ago next month and it may sound rude, but i stayed up all night last night crying, terrified that i might die the way he did. So i wrote this

I don't want to die like you

I don't want to die the way that you did slowly being drained by all the drips

Hooked up on an endless amount of machines i want to be with my friends, laughing with a gleam in my eye i want to be talking and having fun with my friends i want to be laughing, completely oblivious that for me, it's the end i won't cry

on the day that i'll die i won't know much but i know it won't go slow it will soon be over because i dont want to die like you it may sound horrible, but it's true i don't want to lay in a hospital bed waiting, waiting for the day they announce me to bedead

I don't want to die like you

I don't want to die like you
